ABSTRACT:

The highly changeable and inconstant condition of organizational environments, including public and private sectors, has created a need for professional, efficient, and optimal organizations. This need has been facilitated through the introduction of the concept of network structure and policies. Organizational managers have been obliged to enhance their methods of managing network structures. This paper has studied organizational policies, and has discovered network policy as a necessity for today’s organizations, which focuses on the stressing and developing of the decision making process. The paper finally provided theoretical and applied suggestions in order to prepare organizations for progressing in this direction.
