Composing in Persian as a Second Language and English as a Foreign Language: A Study of Narrative Writing

Savaedy SY.

ABSTRACT: Although numerous studies have been conducted to investigate second language composing processes; little research has focused on the differences between composing in a second language, such as Persian, and in English. The present study examines these differences in a group of Iranian EFL learners who composed short stories in both languages. The findings indicate that the students above the level had much less trouble in composing in English, whereas some of the students below the level had considerably more problems in composing in English and Persian.
