Measures Taken by Iran to Prevent Transnational Organized Crimes and its Estimated Position Compared to the UN Criminal Policy

ABSTRACT:
Transnational Organized crimes are being considered as one of the most important problems of the 21st century. These crimes are the result of rapid and frequent expansion of organized crime. The rise of these crimes is due to the development of global networks, with the lack of cooperation among countries in the fight against them. In the absence of an organized framework and the absence of international conventions, there is no particular prevention and no independent body of strategies has been designated. So, in order to exit from this situation, different prevention strategies such as pastoral and social preventions have been set each of which has a different role in supply and demand of these crimes. The study of the measures taken by the government of Iran against Transnational Organized Crimes and UN conventions (Palermo and Merida).
